A few years ago, I was inspired by an article in a photography magazine to do a self-portrait each day for a year as a creative project. I posted each photograph on my website for a year. After the year was over, I had a book printed with all the photographs and captions. That book was entitled "Facing 2010 - A Self Portrait Journey." Then following year, I did not repeat that project. After many positive response from people who liked the project and missed me having a project in 2011, I decided to do a sequel. So during 2012, I attempted to repeat the project. This book is the result of my efforts.
